

TRADE REPORTING COMPLIANCE EXAMINATIONS

Trade Reporting Compliance Examination – SEC and FINRA examinations place increased emphasis on identifying if broker-dealers are reporting transactions in an accurate and timely manner. The regulators may also review the practices of introducing firms that route all orders to their clearing firms. The RRS Trade Reporting Compliance Examination covers all aspects of your firm’s transaction reporting obligations in the following areas:

- Trade Reporting Facilities for equities (NASD, NASDAQ, NSX, NYSE, etc.)
- Order Audit Trail System for equities
- Trade Reporting and Compliance Engine for corporate debt (TRACE)
- Real Time Transaction Reporting System for municipal securities

Risk Based Trading Compliance Services – In addition to the Trade Reporting Compliance Examination, RRS offers a wide range of compliance examinations for equity and debt securities including municipal securities, corporate debt, and OTC derivatives (e.g. CDOs, CMO’s ABS, etc.). In keeping with the prevailing regulatory focus, RRS customizes these “Risk Based” trading examinations to suit your firm’s particular needs. Whether it’s testing compliance with the specific requirements of Regulation NMS, FINRA and MSRB rules, or your firm’s order handling and best execution practices, RRS’ risk based examinations will provide your firm with a cost-effective solution. Our experience in trading compliance includes supervisory policies and procedures relating to pricing and valuation models, counter party due diligence and risk assessment, and trading practices. We also provide extensive support for developing and implementing written supervisory procedures.
